Not going anywhere

Despite relationship with President Obama, Nutter 'absolutely' not leaving City Hall before term ends What does future hold for him? Have to wait until 2016 when his term is over

Hours after President Obama was reelected, Mayor Michael Nutter sought to end speculation that he could be headed to the White House.

"Absolutely, 100 percent, I'm not going anywhere," Nutter said yesterday. "I love this job, I love this city. I have work still to do and I look forward to working with President Obama in his second term by finishing out my second term and doing some great things for this great city."

Nutter has been a loyal Obama supporter and serves as president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, leading some to speculate that he could be headed for a position within the Obama administration. But Nutter said he has made it clear to White House officials he is not interested in another job until his term ends in January 2016.

"I've made it very clear that I'm not going anywhere, so there's no need to ask the question. ... I've only responded to this because [the media] asked me about it, but the folks in the White House know very, very clear my intentions, which are to serve as the mayor of the city of Philadelphia, fulfill my term and, again, I think I can best help the president in a second term by finishing my second term and doing my work right here in Philadelphia," he said.

Nutter was reelected last year by defeating Republican Karen Brown. Nutter's status as a lame duck mayor could impact his relationship with Council over the next few years, especially on controversial issues like property tax assessments. Possible candidates to replace Nutter includes City Council members Jim Kenney, Bill Green, Blondell Reynolds Brown, City Controller Alan Butkovitz and state Rep. Anthony "Hardy" Williams.

Higher office

Since the mayor has ruled out Washington, D.C., under President Obama, He'll have big decisions to make in 2016. Here's some options:

Challenge Pat Toomey: The conservative Republican U.S. senator's term is over at the end of 2016, perfect timing for Nutter to mount a yearlong campaign after the mayor's term ends in January of same year.

Challenge Chaka Fattah: Both men from West Philadelphia haven't been particularly close since Nutter upset Fattah and others for the mayor's office in 2007. The race would be one of the city's best in years.

Go for governor: The timing isn't good for Nutter. He'll have to wait until 2018, which seems light years away.

Teach at Wharton: Going back to take a faculty position at his alma mater seems better than trying again for a City Council seat. Then again, he'd be following in the footsteps of now Temple University professor John Street. METRO/BXM

Senate or bust ... or D.C. after all?

While Nutter shot down rumors that he might be headed to Washington, D.C., it will not end speculation about his political future with three years left in his final term.

Political consultant Larry Ceisler characterized Nutter's commitment to finish out his term as "what one would expect him to say. He could always change his mind if the right thing came along."

If Nutter is interested in pursuing another elected office, he could challenge U.S. Sen. Pat Toomey in 2016.

"I think he'd be very comfortable in the Senate, so I could see him wanting to run against Toomey. And certainly coming out of Philadelphia in the southeast, I think that he'd be a formidable challenger for Toomey. ... We just don't know what the political environment is going to be at that time," Ceisler said. METRO/SDL

Obama really does owe Philly for his Pa. victory

The day after the election political experts and campaign operatives were still talking about how President Obama turned what was supposed to be a nailbiter into a comfortable victory over Republican challenger Mitt Romney. In Pennsylvania, Obama won 52 percent of the vote to 46.8 percent for Romney. While voter turnout was good across the commonwealth, it fell below the 2008 and 2004 presidential elections. METRO/SDL

The first snows arrive, but there are warmer days ahead

A coastal storm brought high winds, flooding, rain, sleet and snow across the Northeast yesterday, where evacuations were ordered in New Jersey and flights into Philadelphia and New York City were scrubbed.

Rain from the storm moved across New Jersey and arrived in Philadelphia by noon, according to officials with the National Weather Service. Winds and storm surge started increasing by the late afternoon as the nor'easter made its way up the coast and eventually into Sandy-ravaged northern New Jersey and New York City.

The storm brought high winds and isolated patches of wet snow to a region that's still recovering from last week's strike by a hurricane. As of yesterday, 931,000 customers were still without power, according to the U.S. Energy Department.

REKARD LARMA/METRO

▶ Drexel students Zeyu Jiang and Mangyin Xu fight the storm.

"Colder air across the interior Northeast will allow snow to mix in or fall alone through tonight. A narrow band of accumulating snow will develop on the backside of the storm along and just west of Interstate 95," said Meghan Evans, a meteorologist with Accuweather.

"The heaviest snow, with the potential for a half a foot of accumulation, is forecast to develop over eastern Pennsylvania to part of southeastern New York and into northwestern New Jersey." BLOOMBERG

Snowy expectations

- Philadelphia was expected to receive up to 4 inches of snow, according to the National Weather Service.
- The mountains in New York to New Hampshire was looking at as much as 6 inches, though the storm probably won't signal an early start to the ski season because temps will rise this weekend.
- A gradual improvement in the weather will begin in New York and the Mid-Atlantic states starting today.

Released from Pa. prison, molester quickly re-arrested

Jose Ramos, for long a suspect in the 1979 disappearance of 6-year-old Etan Patz from a New York City street, was freed from prison on Wednesday after serving 20 years for molesting children. But he was immediately re-arrested pending other charges.

Police said Ramos, 69, took a few steps from the prison gate at the State Correctional Institution at Dallas in northeastern Pennsylvania and was re-arrested for violating Megan's Law provisions requiring sex offenders to register their address.

Lieutenant Richard Krawetz of the Pennsylvania State Police said Pennsylvania authorities had determined that a relative who Ramos said he would live with at a New York City address had not in fact lived there for years. REUTERS

Spanier 'absolutely not guilty' in Sandusky cover-up

Former Penn State University President Graham Spanier pleaded not guilty yesterday to covering up the Jerry Sandusky child sex scandal in what prosecutors called a "conspiracy of silence." He was freed on bail.

In a brief arraignment in Harrisburg District Justice William Wenner's office, the ex-president was told to forfeit his U.S. passport and not to travel outside of Pennsylvania. Bail was set at $125,000, the same amount set for Curley, the athletic director on leave, and Schultz, a retired vice president. His attorney declined to discuss the specifics of the case but said Spanier was "absolutely not guilty." REUTERS

Three states vote to back gay marriage

Voters in Maryland and Maine approved same-sex marriage on Tuesday while a similar measure in Washington state appeared on track to pass, marking the first time marriage rights have been extended to same-sex couples by popular vote.

The vote was hailed as a watershed moment by gay rights activists because while same-sex unions have been legalized in six states and the District of Columbia by lawmakers or courts, voters had consistently rejected doing so. More than 30 states have approved constitutional bans on gay marriage.

"It's enormous. We have truly made history," said Brian Ellner, head of the pro-gay marriage group The Four. "Having the first states approve marriage by a popular vote changes the narrative and sends an important message to the Supreme Court."

Backed by Obama

President Barack Obama earlier this year became the first U.S. president to support gay marriage, and his campaign endorsed the gay marriage measures in the three states.

In Maryland, the measure passed 52 percent to 48 percent.

In Maine, it was leading by 53 percent to 47 percent, with 75 percent of precincts reporting. The 6-point margin was wide enough to allow proponents to declare victory.

And in Washington, it was leading by 52 percent to 48 percent, with 62 percent of precincts reporting.

In Minnesota, meanwhile, voters rejected adding that state to the list of those defining marriage solely as a heterosexual union. With more than 97 percent of precincts reporting, the proposed constitutional amendment was trailing 48 percent to 52 percent.

In all four states, the marriage equality effort did better in urban areas and were less popular among rural voters. REUTERS

Help us make it magical for kids

It's that most wonderful time of the year again — when Metro launches Metro Magic, our annual toy appeal for underprivileged children in New York, Boston and Philadelphia.

For the third year, we're encouraging our readers to contribute what they can to Metro Magic, which since it started in 2010 has delivered thousands of dollars' worth of toys to children for whom there would otherwise be no annual visit from Santa.

Once again we've teamed up with Toys for Tots, the charitable effort run by the U.S. Marines. As the holidays approach, agents from Toys for Tots will help Metro bring some festive joy to underprivileged families and their children.

Metro Magic is especially important this year. Within just a few miles of our New York and Philadelphia offices, children remain without shelter and basic amenities as a result of the devastation from Hurricane Sandy.

Metro has established a wish list at the Toys R Us website. Readers can access the wish list by going to www.metro.us and clicking on the Metro Magic logo at the top left-hand part of the home page.

From there the procedure is simple. Just choose the toys you wish to donate, pay online using Toys R Us' secure payment system, and your gifts, along with your name attached, will be delivered to Metro's offices in New York, Boston or Philadelphia, depending on where you live.

Tony Metcalf, editor-in-chief of Metro U.S., said, "We've been astonished at how well our readers responded over the last two years. Metro Magic got off to a good start in 2010, but last year it really exploded."

In Philadelphia, gifts will eventually be picked up by Marines who run the Philadelphia and Bristol chapter of Toys for Tots.

Gunnery Sgt. David Pierson said he is also releasing public service announcements next week.

The campaign will run until the week before Dec. 25. METRO

Right to be a sore loser

Pundits let loose their postelection wrath

A bunch of angry, middle-aged white men couldn't hide their anger at Obama's victory.

1 Within minutes of Obama being declared winner, Donald Trump took to Twitter. Obama's election was a "great and disgusting injustice," he wrote, before adding: "He lost the popular vote and won the election. We should have a revolution in this country!" He later removed the tweets.

2 Meanwhile in the Fox Studios, Karl Rove argued vehemently with his own employers over their decision to call Ohio as an Obama win — which clinched the presidency for the Democrat. Rove said the call was premature: "We've got to be careful about calling things when we have like 991 votes separating the candidates and a quarter of the vote left to count. ... I'd be very cautious about intruding in this process." But he backtracked when Fox pointed out that remaining votes were in a Democratic-leaning county.

4 In other news, sources at ABC last night denied that anchor Diana Sawyer may have been drinking before the election broadcast after viewers took to social media networks to remark on her allegedly altered manner of speech. ABC sources told the Daily Mail she was just "exhausted." METRO

"It's a changing country. It's no longer a traditional America. Fifty percent of the electorate want things. They want stuff. And who is going to give it to them? Obama did and he ran on that. The white establishment is now a minority."
BILL O'REILLY, ON FOX NEWS

Romney 'stuck in the past'

The Republican postmortem will be long and bitter. A weakened Obama and high unemployment opened the door for change of guard, and party strategists will struggle to understand how Mitt Romney failed to take advantage.

"His message had a weakness in being stuck in the past," Dr. Rasmus Nielsen, political communications professor and author of "Ground Wars: Personalized Communication in Political Campaigns," told Metro. "By saying 'We can't afford four more years [of Obama],' Romney avoided discussing a plan for the future."

Nielsen believes the Republicans also overstated economic failure at a time of slow but steady growth (2 percent) and falling unemployment: "If you ask people if they are better off now than four years ago in the swing states, where unemployment is lower than the national average, many would say yes."

Romney's embarrassing lines such as "47% of Americans are victims" may not have decided votes alone, but contributed to the Obama campaign's portrayal of an out-of-touch millionaire. "It was not until the first debate people could see past the fire-breathing monster," says Nielsen.

Yet Romney was on a tightrope, seeking to appeal to his party's conservative core and the mixed demographic swing states. "It was a real problem for him to convince a party that does not connect with women, black or Hispanic voters, and then come back to the center where minorities are king-makers," said Joe Twyman, YouGov's Director of Political and Social Research.

No candidate could have bridged the gap, Twyman suggests, and the party is now in urgent need of a new direction. "Either the Tea Party will take over or they become more moderate as there is no progress with women or ethnic minorities," he added. "My bet is they will nominate [Cuban-American] Marco Rubio in 2016." MWN

No return to politics for Romney

Betting companies are already making Romney a favorite to win the 2016 election, but the candidate's wife disagrees. "He will not run again," Ann Romney claimed in October, confessing a campaign full of character assassination has been "very hard" on the couple. This has been Romney's second failed election bid, and although he could choose to enter the senate, those that know him expect him to take a completely new path. "I think it's likely this is his last foray into politics," Scott Helman, biographer and co-author of "The Real Romney," told Metro.

Despite expectations that the multimillionaire will return to private business that made him so successful, Helman foresees a more public-spirited position: "It's hard to see him being satisfied by simply returning to the private sector – he's made his money, and he certainly doesn't need more. I believe he wants to put his skills to use in the public or nonprofit sector."

This has been a popular next move for unsuccessful candidates, such as Bob Dole who established his Institute of Politics at the University of Kansas after his failed bid in 1996. Romney already presides over the Tyler Charitable Foundation and will likely devote more time to its work with schools and hospitals. MWN

Wall Street lost its gamble on Romney so woos Obama

Wall Street firms gambled on Mitt Romney and lost.

Now, faced with the prospect of even tougher regulations in Obama's second term, they have to build better ties with the new financial regulators he will appoint.

Stock investors fear banks will meet with limited success. Obama lost the support of many bankers in the aftermath of the 2008 financial crisis and the passage of the 2010 Dodd-Frank financial reform law. The Democratic president openly stated his distaste for "fat cat bankers" who "don't get it," and bankers fear more trouble is ahead if they cannot influence how the Dodd-Frank rules are implemented.
REUTERS

No rest for the winner

Fresh from a decisive reelection win, President Barack Obama returned from the campaign trail yesterday with little time to savor victory, facing urgent economic challenges, a looming fiscal showdown and a still-divided Congress able to block his every move.

Obama defeated Romney on Tuesday night in a grueling presidential race and used his acceptance speech in front of a huge cheering crowd in Chicago to strike a conciliatory note toward his political opponents.

But in the cold light of the 2012 election's morning-after, it was clear that even though voters have endorsed a second Obama term, the president will have a hard time translating that into a mandate to push forward with his agenda.

His most immediate concern is confronting a "fiscal cliff" of automatic tax increases and spending cuts that could crush the U.S. economy recovery — a prospect that weighed heavily on global financial markets on Wednesday and sent Wall Street stocks into a postelection swoon.

Voters chose to preserve the status quo of divided government in Washington. Obama's fellow Democrats retained control of the Senate and Republicans kept their majority in the House of Representatives, giving them power to curb the president's legislative ambitions on everything from taxes to immigration reform.

This is the political reality that Obama — who won a far narrower victory over Romney than his historic election as the country's first black president in 2008 — faces when he returns to Washington today. REUTERS

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

S— my real estate developer says

Can someone please take Twitter away from Donald Trump? Whereas the reality TV host's bombastic behavior is ratings gold on "The Apprentice," on social media it's frankly embarrassing.

On Tuesday night, Trump had a bit of a Twitter meltdown over Mitt Romney's loss of the presidential election. The real estate mogul tweeted on the false assumption that Obama would lose the popular vote but win the White House thanks to the electoral college. One of the nuggets? "Lets fight like hell and stop this great and disgusting injustice! The world is laughing at us."

Then, "NBC Nightly News" did something weird: Host Brian Williams read a few of the tweets on air. He basically rolled his eyes at the missives of his fellow NBC star, saying: "Donald Trump has driven well past the last exit to relevance and veered into something closer to irresponsible."

Well, that didn't sit right with Trump, who is now attacking Williams, calling him a "dummy." Via Twitter, Trump retorted: "Brian, I hope @NBCNightlyNews isn't paying you too much — look at what's happening to nightly news. Brian Williams was never a smart guy but always passes himself off as such. People will learn the truth!"

And then: "The only thing more boring than @bwilliams newscast is his show Rock Center which is totally dying in the ratings — a disaster!"

So basically, Trump on Twitter is the equivalent of your crazy grandfather typing out letters to the local newspaper about some invented injustice or another, but with a much larger microphone.

We'll say it in fewer than 140 characters: Donald, stop the insanity!

'Modern Family' actress pulled from home

"Modern Family" actress Ariel Winter, 14, was taken from her home amid reports of physical and emotional abuse from her mother, TMZ reports. Sources tell the site that a judge gave Winter's sister, Shanelle Workman, temporary guardianship after a hearing on Oct. 3, and that Winter's mother, Crystal Workman, must stay 100 yards away from Ariel.

Winter: Out of the house

Apparently (and unfortunately) this isn't the first time abuse allegations have struck this family, however. The Department of Children and Family Services removed Shanelle from Crystal's home almost 20 years ago on similar accounts of abuse. Shanelle was reportedly in foster care for two years and did not return to her mother's home.

A report saying that Winter is looking to divorce her parents over a rift between her and her boyfriend is false, TMZ claims.

Before the Oct. 3 hearing, Winter tweeted: "ALWAYS be strong. Stand up for yourself."

The next hearing in the case is scheduled for Nov. 20.

Ne-Yo sees 'R.E.D.'

'In My Own Words'

Ne-Yo says that although he enjoys performing, what has always been more important to him is that he actually has a song that's worth performing.

"At 9, I discovered the beauty of songwriting," he says. "I didn't know if I was going to be an artist. I didn't know if I was going to play an instrument. But I knew it was going to be music."

With a new album and a new job at one of the leading labels, the man beneath the hat says he is realizing every dream

In the time since his last album, Ne-Yo has become a father for the second time, hit the big screen (with a role in the George Lucas-directed "Red Tails") and he recently took on the job of senior vice president of Artists and Repertoire at a little company known as Universal Motown, a job that music legend Smokey Robinson once held. But even with a full plate, he says he is focused on making sure his newly released set "R.E.D." — which stands for "Realizing Every Dream" — is a success.

"I started setting a lot of dreams and aspirations for myself," he says about his childhood. "I wanted to win Grammys. I wanted the respect and appreciation of my peers. I wanted to travel the world behind my music and provide for my family. I can honestly say that from [the age of] 9 until now at 33 years old, just about every dream I set for myself has been realized through music."

On what he calls the most well-balanced project of his career, "R.E.D." is split between R&B and dance tracks in an effort to satisfy his entire fan base. The result is an album equally useful in the bedroom as it is in the club.

The singer/songwriter has been outspoken about the lack of passion in today's R&B. Yet even with his criticism, he is quickly able to point to a few artists that get him going. "I love what Frank Ocean is doing with the R&B right now," he says. "He definitely has a different take on it. That's a good step in the right direction."

Quoted

"Just about every dream I set for myself has been realized through music." NE-YO

Ne-Yo also admits that the criticism he offered to Trey Songz was premature.

"I had made some comments about Trey that I have to retract and apologize to him. I hadn't listened to 'Chapter V' yet," he says of Songz's latest work. "He is putting the passion back in it. His performance is definitely there."

With his new role at Motown, Ne-Yo hopes to be able to do just that. He also says he likes the idea of being a part of history. "I'd like to be instrumental in the revitalization of Motown," he says. "And more importantly ... I'd like to be able to take the knowledge that I have acquired and ... pass it down."

FRED BEANS REPEATS HISTORIC USED CAR SALE

Doylestown, PA - Fred Beans, CEO and Founder of the Fred Beans Automotive Group located in Doylestown PA, has announced a ONE DAY SALE on Saturday, November 10th at 9:00 AM, where pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. This sale is being held due to overwhelming public demand.

Cars will be clearly marked, so come early for the best selection. This is a ONE DAY ONLY sale designed to get the local community driving again.

Fred Beans' pre-owned inventory levels need to be reduced to make room for shipments of new models arriving daily. As a result, all 7 Fred Beans Doylestown locations are selling these overstocked pre-owned vehicles to the public at drastic discounts in an attempt to clear excess inventory.

In addition to this huge variety of pre-owned vehicles, the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships in Doylestown features new Ford, Lincoln, Mitsubishi, Dodge, Chrysler, Jeep, Hyundai, Nissan, Subaru, Chevrolet, Cadillac, Buick, GMC, and Saab vehicles.

Fred Beans believes reviving the economy starts at home, and changing things locally will lead to changing things nationally.

In addition to the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships' extra inventory, additional vehicles have been acquired at incredible prices from various banks, repossession companies, auto auctions, credit unions, lease companies, and rental companies for this sale.

The sale will make pre-owned vehicles available for as low as $999, prices not normally offered to the general public. According to Fred Beans, "We want to give our customers a reason to believe in the local economy again. Someone has to look out for their best interests."

Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM to inspect the entire inventory and find the car that is right for them. Every vehicle will be cleaned, detailed, and fully prepared for instant delivery. On the evening of November 9th after close of business, Mr. Beans and his team will mark the special sale price on each and every vehicle.

Because Fred Beans' customers are feeling the credit crunch right now, the Fred Beans Automotive Group has given the dealerships' financing managers the resources necessary to get most customers' credit approved on the spot.

The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships has $10,000,000 in lending power, the result of over 50 years of strong relationships with the area's leading lenders. This means that customers with "less than perfect" credit history can have their credit approved and drive a quality pre-owned car, truck, or SUV home by lunchtime on Saturday.

Even if a customer's credit report shows a bankruptcy, divorce, tax lien, slow payment history, missed payment, or repossession, or if a customer is a first time buyer, Fred Beans may get them approved.

This special ONE DAY ONLY sale will be held at all 7 Fred Beans Doylestown locations this Saturday, November 10th, at 9:00AM.

Pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM for the start of inspection. Incredible sale prices, starting as low as $999, will be posted no later than 8:00AM. All vehicles will be sold on a first come, first serve basis. The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships is expecting a high volume of customers for this sale, so be sure to reserve your spot early.

Customers wishing to trade in a vehicle are asked to bring their title or payment book for immediate delivery. Fred Beans will even pay off your trade-in in full, no matter how much you still owe on it.

Most of these surplus pre-owned vehicles will get sent directly to auto auctions for liquidation. So, if anyone has been thinking about purchasing a good, clean, dependable pre-owned car, truck, van or sport utility vehicle, do not miss this special ONE DAY ONLY sale.

Courtesy transportation available from all local airports, train stations and bus depots.

For more information about this sale and directions to our locations please visit us online at www.999sale.com or call 1-866-920-9612

10 REASONS TO GO TO THE MOVIES

Must-see

1 'Skyfall' Daniel Craig returns as that charmingly elusive MI6 agent, but this time, we find 007's stealthy skills challenged by a brilliantly evil new adversary — ex-agent Silva (Javier Bardem).

2 'The Man with the Iron Fists' Wu-Tang Clan's RZA co-wrote, directed and stars in this kung fu caper, which was co-produced, fittingly, by Quentin Tarantino. It tells the tale of a 19th-century blacksmith (RZA) who builds elaborate weaponry to defend his tiny village.

3 'Wreck-It Ralph' John C. Reilly gives voice to the doddering video game villain who sets off to see what life would be like as a hero in another game.

SONY PICTURES PUBLICITY

4 'Flight' Denzel Washington stars as a pilot who becomes a hero when he saves his plane from crashing. It soon becomes clear, however, that he had alcohol in his system while on duty.

5 'Cloud Atlas' We're prepared to be confused by this film. But if Tom Hanks and Halle Berry have signed on, this intricate time warp has to be worth the ticket price.

6 'Chasing Mavericks' Gerard Butler is the Bodhi to Jonny Weston's Johnny Utah in this story about a teen (Weston) who aspires to ride "maverick" waves and the cranky veteran surfer (Butler) who tutors him.

7 'Fun Size' Halloween. High school kids. A raging party. A lost younger brother. You imagine the rest.

8 'Silent Hill: Revelation 3D' The first "Silent Hill" film that came out in 2006 didn't exactly win the favor of critics, but this sequel at least has 3-D.

9 'Alex Cross' While Madea endures a period of forced retirement, her creator and Dr. Jekyll extraordinaire Tyler Perry plays against type in this adaptation of the best-selling James Patterson crime thrillers based on the title character.

10 'Paranormal Activity 4' While we continue to mourn the end of the "Saw" franchise — just kidding, no one misses it — we are comforted by yet another mainstay of the horror genre. METRO

The rise of RZA

As a first-time director, the rap artist's new feature film, 'The Man with the Iron Fists,' is a celebration of his life-long passion for kung fu

There's not much that RZA, more formally known as Bobby Fitzgerald Diggs, can't do. Starting out as the leader of the popular hip-hop group the Wu-Tang Clan, he has since climbed his way up the ladder producing, acting and screenwriting. Now, he adds director to his resume. RZA finally showed his baby, "The Man with the Iron Fists," to the world last week, but not before facing a few obstacles, including chronic loneliness and cultural discrepancies, along the way.

RZA said one of the hardest things about making the martial arts film was spending over 150 days in a foreign country without his family. "The different vibe was just a lonely situation really, not only not seeing any blacks in China, but not seeing no whites either," he says. "My wife wasn't able to come over because of the duties of home … so I was really lonely, everybody else's wives came over, everybody had love … There was a week where Jamie Chung came in to be Lady Silk and I just started like looking at her like that was my woman [laughs]."

Although he's no stranger to the industry, RZA said he faced many difficulties as a first-time director. "You've got to think, first of all even having the level of talent trust me and to have a mutual trust back and forth was a challenge because I'm not just playing with just any Joe Schmoe. [I've] got some of the best in the world coming to represent with me and you want to protect that," he says.

Having watched all the kung fu classics throughout childhood and even naming his band after a film from the genre — "Shaolin and Wu Tang" — RZA said he made sure to include cues from his favorite martial arts flicks in his film. "It was very important to pay homage to those things that inspired [me], especially Bruce Lee. I consider Bruce Lee a minor prophet," he says. "In the Koran it teaches us that we have major prophets and we have minor prophets, so Abraham, Moses and Jesus would be major. But then you have minor prophets that only live for small periods of time and inspire people in their own small ways. I feel Bruce Lee was like that … He brought martial arts films to the world stage. Billion dollar corporations were based on his vision."

"The Man with the Iron Fists" has been a labor of love for RZA, as he worked on the film for years before bringing it to life. He said he was surprised at how much the film changed throughout the process. "They say movies are made three times and I heard it before I did it," he says. "I understand what they mean."

CHAN HAN CHUEN

The cocktail trouser hour

Martinis aren't the only thing in need of a shake and stir This season a glitzy pair of trousers replaces the little black dress

Trousers to a cocktail party? Here are a few reasons to give them a try: 1) Pants are more liberating and easier to dance in than a tiny little dress, 2) They're chic in a slightly unaffected, androgynous kind of way and 3) This season's flashy, embellished versions are bang on trend thanks to Stella McCartney, Jonathan Saunders, Miu Miu and a long list of others who worked the look into their fall collections.

When leaving isn't an option

From the outside, it may seem painfully obvious that a partner being abused should get out One expert on what makes someone stay behind

It's a seemingly simple question, but the answer is fraught with complexities: If someone in a relationship is being abused, why doesn't that person just leave?

"There's a variety of reasons," says Maureen Curtis, LMSW, MPH, associate vice president at Safe Horizon, a New York City victim assistance organization. "Probably first and foremost is fear. Most domestic violence is about power and control. If the person decides to leave, then [the batterer] loses control, so it places the victim more in danger."

Another reason is money. Without financial help from a partner, it can be difficult to support oneself and a family, Curis says.

Victims of abuse can flee to domestic violence shelters, but that might not provide a permanent solution.

The victims who choose not to leave "learn how to manage their risks so that they're able to stay there, keep a roof over their heads and their children's heads," Curtis says.

"I remember one time this woman came into my office and she was really upset because her partner had been arrested. She told me that a year ago she was homeless, living in the streets with her three children, and this man took her and her children in. And while he was abusive, she said that it was worse living in the streets with her three children. She felt she could manage the times that he hit her. And it puts it into perspective. She's making a difficult decision."

MEREDITH ENGEL
meredith.engel@metro.us

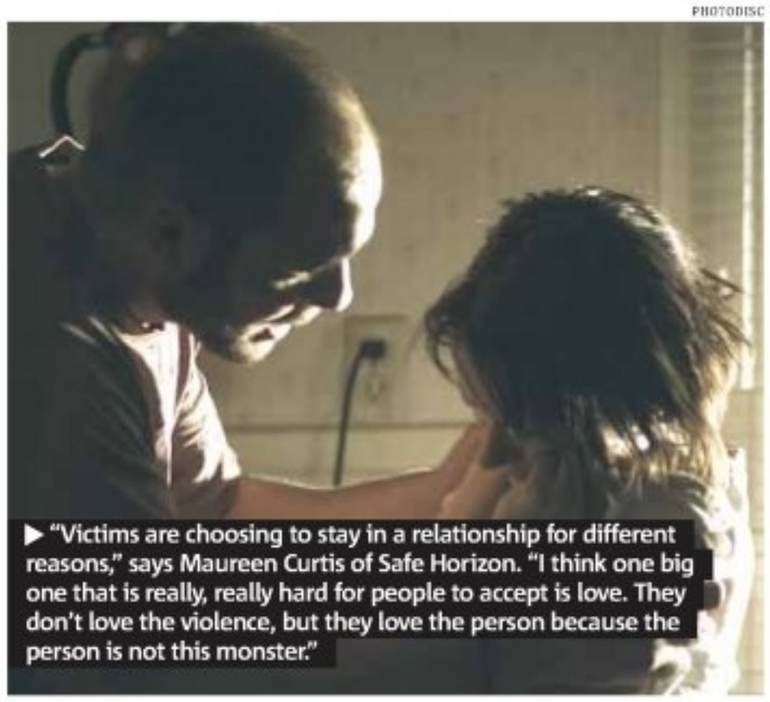
Recognize the signs

"When you think of domestic violence, you think of that classic battered woman who is beaten, who's bruised, who wants to avail themselves of all the services and is ready to leave — and that's not the reality," Curtis says.

Keep an eye out for the following signs, which she says are all hallmarks of abuse:

- Physical marks: "If you see bruises or cuts that seem explained in ways that don't seem legitimate, that's something you should look at."
- Excessive jealousy: "It's one thing to be jealous, but it's another thing to be jealous to the point of possessive. [Look for] controlling behavior, where that person wants to control everything that their partner does."
- Isolation from friends and family: "They could have had the highest self-esteem and now they're so isolated," Curtis says. "And this is the one person that tells them that they love them."

PHOTODISC



▶ "Victims are choosing to stay in a relationship for different reasons," says Maureen Curtis of Safe Horizon. "I think one big one that is really, really hard for people to accept is love. They don't love the violence, but they love the person because the person is not this monster."

Democrats rejoice — and gloat

Today is a great day for America and her people. Yesterday, millions came together for one cause and that was to vote for their hearts and future. President Obama won reelection. The Republican Party is left with doubling down. The "all eggs in one basket" approach backfired. They are now left with having to come face to face with the George W. Bush legacy of never taking full responsibility for their mistakes, now they are engaging in a new round of finger pointing at each other and candidates Mitt Romney and Paul Ryan. They will have to rebuild their brand and reputations all over again mainly because of Bush.

ANTONIO BENJAMIN, VIA E-MAIL

Republicans mourn — and pray

The reelection of President Obama is one of the saddest days I can remember. I feel like someone shut the lights out on America's bright future. Oh! What could have been. I had such optimism.

We will continue down the road of big government. More people will continue with their entitlements, food stamps, free housing, etc. Take away people's incentive to work, and their dreams die. We still have a huge debt — more than $16 trillion dollars and growing. The stagnant economy and record joblessness are all issues Obama will have to address.

We can no longer blame Bush for America's decline. Obama must take responsibility for our demise.

JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, VIA E-MAIL

OMG. Four more years of blaming George Bush. God help America.

MIKE SEFA, VIA E-MAIL

Everyone else is just sick of the fuss

Now that the campaign season is over, we can finally get a break from all those awful ads. Most people know those ads and the huge sums of money that paid for them were unleashed by the Supreme Court's Citizens United decision. But did you know we're now one quarter of the way to reversing that decision by amending the U.S. Constitution? As of Tuesday, we are. Amending the Constitution requires two-thirds of each chamber of Congress — that's 67 senators and 290 representatives — plus three-fourths of the states — that's 38 states. Eleven states have formally called for an amendment, including two, Montana and Colorado, where the voters statewide just voted on Tuesday to call for one. Add your state to that list.

JEFF SHAPIRO, VIA E-MAIL

Maybe we can finally see an end to the two-party nightmare. There was really no difference between either camp's candidate. All I know is that as long as the Republican machine keeps churning out unelectable poster children and the Democratic machine keeps pushing harder-left candidates, the only thing that will be the same is the land of the free and home of the brave will be seen as the joke of the free world. Oh wait, there is no free world, just varying degrees authority and police states. I'd move, but where to? Mars isn't open yet.

Herremans out for the rest of season

The test results came back and brought more bad news to the Eagles. Starting right tackle Todd Herremans is out for the remainder of the season with a foot tendon injury. He was placed on IR yesterday.

To fill his spot, the Eagles promoted guard Julian Vandervelde from the practice squad. The team also re-signed defensive tackle Frank Trotter and added him to the practice squad.

"Just do extra work," Kelly said. "Commit to doing that extra film work."

Quarterback Mike Vick has never seen a line this banged up in his career.

"I never have played behind a line that's had to shuffle so many guys in and out," Vick said. "But it's part of the game. It's one of those seasons where you're nicked up and guys have got to step up."

▶ The offensive line is down to just one player that the team had projected to start the season.

To call the Eagles' offensive line a turnstile would be an insult to the turnstile. The unit has gone through more changes than a moody teenager over the past few weeks.

Now, with the announcement that Todd Herremans is out for the season, the unit is going under the knife again. The Eagles are down to one player, Evan Mathis, from the original five projected to start.

"It's kind of weird, it's like a 'Final Destination' kind of thing. Hopefully, I don't get hit by a bus," left guard Evan Mathis joked.

But it's far from a joke eight games in. The Eagles need to achieve some sort of cohesion despite the constant shuffling up front.

"If there's two guys next to me and I don't know exactly how they know the playbook or I don't know exactly how they move or how they're going to do certain techniques, even just half a step off in the NFL makes a huge difference," injured center Jason Kelce said. "I think cohesion along the offensive line unit is very big."

So far the crash course in chemistry has failed. The Eagles have surrendered 27 sacks, including seven last week. Those numbers don't take into account the amount of jarring hits that Mike Vick has endured. He was under siege Monday in New Orleans.

"It's not the [most fun] thing in the world to get hit over and over and over again, but I just keep getting up," Vick said.

Defenses watch tape. Defenses also read injury reports. And they are fully aware of the inexperienced group now protecting Vick. Their mindset is to attack, attack, attack.

"You're going to try and get after them," said defensive tackle Cullen Jenkins. "It's something as a defensive lineman — not just defensive linemen but linebackers, defensive coordinators, you're going to be scheming to get after them."

Kelce offering advice to wobbly line

Jason Kelce is powerless. As he recovers from a fully torn MCL and partially torn ACL in his right knee, he can only sit and watch the Eagles on TV. It's been one of the most frustrating experiences of his life.

"When you're not playing, it's frustrating because you really can't control the outcome," Kelce said. "You just have to hope that people start doing their jobs better."

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Kelce

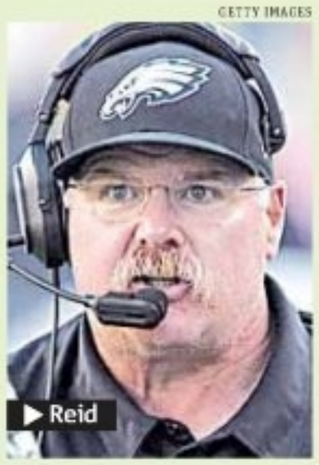
Kelce intends to serve as a pseudo-coach this week as the Birds prepare for Dallas. He'll be studying Cowboys tape and looking for any nuances, like an elongated stance or head nod, that might provide an advantage.

"It's more about studying film and studying your opponent," said Kelce, specifically mentioning Cowboys nose tackle Jay Ratliff. "[It's] certain physiological things that you don't even think about when you're playing. Based on body language, there are certain things you should be able to eliminate out of his repertoire."

As far as Kelce's return to the field, he's targeting the start of training camp next year — possibly minicamps since there isn't contact allowed. METRO/MG

Red zone? ... More like dead zone

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Reid

The red zone, that wide area in between the 20-yard line and the goal line, has been a place of horrors for the Eagles.

The team went 0-for-5 against New Orleans, settling for two field goals and turning it over twice. One of those miscues was returned 98 yards the other way for a score.

For the season, the Eagles rank 30th in the NFL at 37-percent. The only two teams worse than them are Cleveland (2-7) and Kansas City (1-7).

"It's not like we're not trying to score in the red zone," Mike Vick said. "Sometimes, you've just got to put it all together and you've just got to give the defense some credit sometimes. We should be better."

Many pointed to the fact that Andy Reid seemed to shy away from running the ball down there. The Eagles ran 20 red-zone plays last week, but only three runs.

"When you get down into the red zone everything happens a lot faster, holes are a lot smaller [and] pass lanes are a lot tighter so all those things we can fix," Bryce Brown said.

Injury report

McCoy sick, nothing to worry about

LeSean McCoy missed practice yesterday with an illness. His status doesn't appear to be in jeopardy for Sunday's game.

In other injury news, safety Nate Allen (hamstring) was back out there. Missing in action were receiver Mardy Gilyard (hamstring) and guard Danny Watkins (ankle).

STASHING FOR THE STRETCH

We can't win fantasy championships in Week 10. We can, however, start setting ourselves up for title runs.

When building the bottom of rosters, we're looking for potential difference-makers. There are three places to look.

Back from the doc

Thanks in part to the new "designated for return" injured reserve list, players will start rolling back into action. Cedric Benson (foot) will be back in Week 14. Beanie Wells (toe) is on track to start in Week 12. Greg Jennings (groin) will want to get some work in before the playoffs. Rashard Mendenhall (heel) is the best talent in Pittsburgh's backfield.

Clinch and rest

Unfortunately, a few teams will end up resting their starters in Week 16 because they've locked in their playoff seed. Right now, the 8-0 Falcons are on track to rest some of their studs. Stash Jacquizz Rodgers. If the Texans sit Arian Foster in Week 16, Ben Tate is going to decide some fantasy championships.

Handcuffing studs

One injury can shake up an entire fantasy season. Add Bryce Brown to your roster, and if LeSean McCoy goes down, you have a top-15 option ready to rock. We can say the same thing about players such as Tate, Andre Brown, Kendall Hunter, Evan Royster and Bernard Pierce. Stash a lottery ticket.

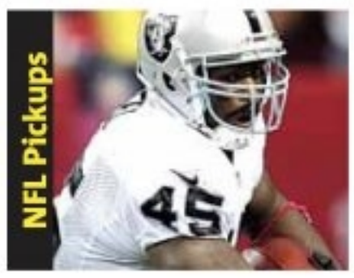
GETTY IMAGES

▶ Greg Jennings could give teams a lift come fantasy playoff time.

NFL news

Mega knee

Calvin Johnson has a knee issue that's making it hard for him to cut. He's not practicing. For most mere mortals, this is a big concern. For Megatron, it's water under the bridge. He posted a 6/111/0 line in the first half of Week 9 and Matthew Stafford is trending up. Buy.



Marcel Reece

RB, Raiders
With Darren McFadden and Mike Goodson sidelined by ankle injuries, the Raiders will go pass-heavy. Reece is a former college wideout.

Beanie Wells

RB, Cardinals
Wells' toe is fully expected to be 100 percent in Week 12, when he's eligible to return. He'll have no trouble regaining the feature back job.

Emmanuel Sanders

WR, Steelers
Antonio Brown is nursing an ankle sprain, leaving Sanders in line for an every-down role. He has the speed to make big plays.

NBA impressions

GETTY IMAGES

The values of these players are on the move already.

1. James Harden, SG, HOU — More minutes, more shots, more plays called for Harden in Houston. He is now a clear top-5 fantasy player.
2. J.J. Redick, SG, ORL — Redick always had a roto-friendly game. Now that Orlando is devoid of talent, he's getting consistent opportunities. He'll hit two treys/game this year.
3. Anderson Varejao, C, CLE — Sideshow Bob hair, wild man on the glass. Varejao's energy makes him a nightly asset as a defensive maven.

USED CARS as low as $999 FRED BEANS REPEATS HISTORIC USED CAR SALE

Limerick, PA – Fred Beans, CEO and Founder of the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships located in Limerick PA, has announced a ONE DAY SALE on Saturday, November 10th at 9:00AM, where pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. This sale is being held due to overwhelming public demand.

Cars will be clearly marked, so come early for the best selection. This is a ONE DAY ONLY sale designed to get the local community driving again.

Fred Beans' pre-owned inventory levels need to be reduced to make room for shipments of new models arriving daily. As a result, all 3 Fred Beans Limerick locations are selling these overstocked pre-owned vehicles to the public at drastic discounts in an attempt to clear excess inventory.

In addition to this huge variety of pre-owned vehicles, the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships in Limerick features new Chevrolet, Nissan and Kia vehicles.

Fred Beans believes reviving the economy starts at home, and changing things locally will lead to changing things nationally.

In addition to the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships' extra inventory, additional vehicles have been acquired at incredible prices from various banks, repossession companies, auto auctions, credit unions, lease companies, and rental companies for this sale.

The sale will make pre-owned vehicles available for as low as $999, prices not normally offered to the general public. According to Fred Beans, "We want to give our customers a reason to believe in the local economy again. Someone has to look out for their best interests."

Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM to inspect the entire inventory and find the car that is right for them. Every vehicle will be cleaned, detailed, and fully prepared for instant delivery. On the evening of November 9th after close of business, Mr. Beans and his team will mark the special sale price on each and every vehicle.

Because Fred Beans' customers are feeling the credit crunch right now, the Fred Beans Automotive Group has given the dealerships' financing managers the resources necessary to get most customers' credit approved on the spot.

The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships has $10,000,000 in lending power, the result of over 50 years of strong relationships with the area's leading lenders. This means that customers with "less than perfect" credit history can have their credit approved and drive a quality pre-owned car, truck, or SUV home by lunchtime on Saturday.

Even if a customer's credit report shows a bankruptcy, divorce, tax lien, slow payment history, missed payment, or repossession, or if a customer is a first time buyer, Fred Beans may get them approved.

This special ONE DAY ONLY sale will be held at all 3 Fred Beans Limerick locations this Saturday, November 10th, at 9:00AM.

Pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM for the start of inspection. Incredible sale prices, starting as low as $999, will be posted no later than 8:00AM. All vehicles will be sold on a first come, first serve basis. The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships is expecting a high volume of customers for this sale, so be sure to reserve your spot early.

Customers wishing to trade in a vehicle are asked to bring their title or payment book for immediate delivery. Fred Beans will even pay off your trade-in in full, no matter how much you still owe on it.

Most of these surplus pre-owned vehicles will get sent directly to auto auctions for liquidation. So, if anyone has been thinking about purchasing a good, clean, dependable pre-owned car, truck, van or sport utility vehicle, do not miss this special ONE DAY ONLY sale.

Courtesy transportation available from all local airports, train stations and bus depots.

Metro's NFL power rankings | by Mike Greger

GETTY IMAGES

1 FALCONS (8-0)
They've handled every challenge thrown at them. They've won blowout games. They've won tight games. They've beaten almost the entire NFC East. Now they'll go to New Orleans to face a Saints team in desperate need of a season-saving win. Win there and maybe hush all critics.

2 TEXANS (7-1)
Like a well-oiled machine: Run Arian Foster into the ground, let Matt Schaub chuck it around and trust the NFL's best (second-best?) defense to get you another win.

3 BEARS (7-1)
If Jay Cutler and the offense is rolling like they were last week, forget about it, because the Bears can beat anybody. Game of the year Sunday, at home vs. Texans.

4 NINERS (6-2)
Talk all you want about the defense — and it is very impressive — but running back Frank Gore is the glue. He is on pace for more than 1,300 yards this season.

5 GIANTS (6-3)
Big Blue lost despite one of the worst games of Eli Manning's career (10-of-24, 125 yards, one interception). Some are anticipating another second-half swoon. We're not.

6 RAVENS (6-2)
They should be able to squeak out a win on reputation alone this week, then we'll find out how tough the Ray Lewis-deprived Ravens really are in Pittsburgh.

7 PACKERS (6-3)
We told you they were heating up, NBA Jam style. They have four straight wins with an average margin of victory of almost two TDs (12.75).

8 PATRIOTS (5-3)
In Bill Belichick we trust. His defense may be a tad slow; however, the new wrinkle on offense — tailback Stevan Ridley (716 yards) — is a pretty good insurance policy behind Tom Brady.

9 BRONCOS (5-3)
Peyton Manning hasn't been shy about floating some ducks, but when you have 48 fourth-quarter comebacks in your career, who cares? He looks like he is finding his pre-injury form. Denver is Peyton's Place.

10 STEELERS (5-3)
If you had told anyone not named Dick LeBeau that Troy Polamalu would play only two games and Pittsburgh would rank No. 1 in total defense, just shut up, because you're lying.

11 SEAHAWKS (5-4)
Just when they were starting to look like pretenders, they earn a crucial win against a potential playoff team. With this defense, they'll be there.

12 COLTS (5-3)
Andrew Luck was supposed to be three or four years away from a playoff run, yet here they are, sitting in contention at the midway point. Luck is better than RG3. You heard it here first.

13 VIKINGS (5-4)
The slide has started in Minnesota, and it probably won't end until — with apologies to Samantha Steele — Christian Ponder learns how to be a difference-maker.

14 DOLPHINS (4-4)
Ryan Tannehill won't get the press his rookie classmates Andrew Luck and Robert Griffin III get because he doesn't put up the numbers, but his leadership is invaluable.

15 CHARGERS (4-4)
A win is a win is a win is a win, even if it's against Kansas City. Does Philip Rivers (18-of-20 last week) have one last run in him? Will Norv Turner be able to hang around one more year? We'll find out over the next two weeks.

Temple preps for Cincinnati, denies QB controversy

Owls need to run table to be bowl eligible Coyer remains starter Head coach hoping for 12th game

Despite a succession of fumbles and offensive ineptitude by Temple's offense during lopsided losses to Rutgers, Pitt and Louisville, it's still not time for the "Juice" to be loose. At least, not when the Owls host Cincinnati (6-2) this weekend.

Chris Coyer will remain the starting quarterback. Backup Clinton "Juice" Granger, who has mopped up those three losses while dealing with a sprained ankle, and Penn State transfer Kevin Newsome, who received reps with the starters this week, will continue to wait their turn.

"I'm trying to look at the body of work," said Addazio. "I think Chris really played quite well in that [Louisville] game until we turned it over. I don't want to minimize that because those turnovers kill you. But, up to that point, Chris probably played some of his best football. I liked his leadership and energy.

"At this stage of the game, that's what gives our team its best chance to win. But we'll see what develops."

The still unanswered question remains, when does their season end? Temple's desperately been trying to schedule a 12th game — reportedly Dec. 7 at Hawaii — which Addazio sees as nothing but positive.

"It would be tremendous for us to have another game at the end," said Addazio, who might need that game to be Bowl eligible. "It means more practice time; another game for a young football team.

"Obviously, every team in America's got 12 games. We've got 11. If something can happen to create that, I'd certainly be all for it. I know our team would embrace that."

For now, Temple (3-5) will wind up the season traveling to Army, then hosting Syracuse on Nov. 23.

Union holding open tryout, looking to find local talent

Philadelphia sports teams love giving back to the community. And they love looking for the next Vince Papale.

The Union announced they are holding an open tryout on Nov. 17 (8 a.m.-5 p.m.) at YSC Sports in Wayne. Each prospective player is guaranteed two opportunities, one in the morning session and another in the afternoon. There is a $130 registration fee.

"We know that there is a lot of undiscovered soccer talent in the Philadelphia area, and we're excited to see if we can uncover the next Union player right here in our own backyard," said Union manager John Hackworth.

Participation is limited, as the Union will operate on a first-come, first-served basis. There is no age requirement and participants must bring their own cleats and shin pads.

The Soul, the city's Arena Football League team, ran a similar campaign a few weeks ago. The team is holding another open tryout on Jan. 26. Keep an eye on the Soul's official website for exact times and locations. METRO
